Student Designer Noah Mermelstein

Noah, how long have you been coming to the Lainer Library?

I have come to the library as a student since early childhood—at least six years.

What gave you the idea to make a logo for the library?

I was thinking to myself if the library had a logo, and Morah Sapphira said it didn't. I thought, "Why don't I make a logo for the library considering I have designed logos before?"

How did you design the library logo?

I first started with a bunch of logos and narrowed it down to just a few. Once I had about 5 or 6 I emailed them to Morah Sapphira, and she chose her favorite one. I put it in different fonts and messed with the size, words, and placing. Morah Sapphira made the final decision from the samples I gave her.

What was it like to work with Morah Sapphira as your client?

It was fun to send a logo, see what I should change, and send it back and repeat the process. Morah Sapphira was fun to work with and really listened to what I had to say.

How do you think the library can use technology more?

The library should have something on their site where people at home can see if there is a book available that they want and be able to reserve it if it's not checked out or put their name on a waiting list if it is checked out.

What is one of your favorite books?

Diary of a Wimpy Kid because it is not like other books, and it is funny.

Are you planning on seeing the movie?

Yes, but it doesn't look that good. Movies from books aren't usually that good.

Is there anything else you'd like to share?

I think the library needs more computers because whenever my class is at the library there is almost always a line for the computers.

Thank you, Noah!

Noah Mermelstein is a day school student in 4th grade. He is also a library intern and the designer of the new Lainer Library logo below.
